NO ONE KNOWS returns, new short stories, and a belly-warming stew

November 2016 Newsletter

Vol. CLXXX

Hi, Gentle Reader!

hello!

Welcome to November! Are there still leaves on your trees? Fall is sticking around a few more weeks in Nashville (we hope), before winter makes itself at home for a while. This is my favorite time of year: the colors, the cooler air, the chance to revisit the goals of the year and check progress... And I'm not going to lie: this Colorado girl loves some cold weather.

I've just returned from a fantastic meeting with my publishers in Toronto, where the trees were exploding with color, and it snowed (!) the morning I arrived. And it wasn't only awesome weather—there are some amazing plans in place for the new standalone, and 2017 is going to be a fun-filled year. With any luck, I'll get to meet even more of you on the road. Stay tuned for more exciting news!

'Tis the Season for New Books!

It's HERE! I love this cover, and love this story, and can't wait to share it with you!And it makes a fabulous holiday gift for your favorite reader. I'm just sayin'....

Gimme that paperback!

THE FIRST DECADE by J.T. Ellison

My short stories have only been available via ebook—until now! ☐ THE FIRST DECADE has 10 years of my short stories, plus two new stories I wrote exclusively for this collection.

What I'm Reading

[Redacted]

[Redacted]

This month's reading material is brought to you by some of my favorite (and the most brilliant) women on the planet. Three very different stories, but each is oh-so wonderful. I couldn't help myself, I reread the entire All Soul's trilogy this month!

November's Recipe

Chicken Stew

It's time for comfort food! This is a family favorite, merging my mother's recipe with my own. Happily, by using cornstarch instead of flour, it becomes gluten-free. The cornstarch gives the stew a cleaner flavor, too, so bonuses all around.

Take me to the stew!

That's it from me! Happy Thanksgiving to my American chickens, eat lots of yummy things, buy NO ONE KNOWS and let me know what you think, stay warm, and we'll talk again soon!

xoxo,

Let's be friends. I don't bite!
